Unlocking Hidden Potential Through Strategic Questions and Courageous Leadership

Ken Woodward's 32-year Navy journey began as a Submarine Radioman on USS ALEXANDRIA before teaching satellite communications systems and leading major DoD programs. As a DoD acquisition professional, he utilized innovative ideas to procure submarine, mine warfare, and unmanned systems (UxVs) to meet Fleet requirements.

In March 2025, Ken leveraged the technical and emotional intelligence skills he had honed during his Navy career to launch Curated Questions, a transformative coaching and speaking venture that celebrates the power of strategic questioning and courageous leadership. His podcast features thought-provoking conversations with leaders who utilize inquiry to drive breakthrough results across industries.

Through keynote presentations and executive coaching, Ken equips leaders with questioning frameworks that dismantle limiting assumptions, accelerate innovation, and unlock hidden organizational potential, transforming how teams think, perform, and thrive.

What a delight it was to be in conversation with you. I anticipated it would be fun, but I did not anticipate that it would be so moving. I really appreciated the way you helped me open up. And I'm admiring of that.
