Yemurai Rabvukwa

Empowering Tech & Cyber Professionals to Overcome Barriers and Seize Opportunities

Yemurai Rabvukwa is a Senior Cybersecurity Associate, Keynote Speaker, and Tech Careers Strategist. With a First-Class Chemistry degree from the University of Liverpool, she took a non-traditional path into cybersecurity—an experience that now drives her mission to redefine career success and expand access to tech careers for underrepresented groups.

Yemurai's passion lies in connecting aspiring tech professionals with resources, mentorship, and insights to make a move into cybersecurity. With over 76,000 social media followers, she has helped individuals transition into cybersecurity, including career changers from healthcare and finance. As a keynote speaker at events like UK Cyber Week and Devoxx, she engages audiences with practical strategies to navigate imposter syndrome, squiggly cyber careers, and the address cybersecurity skills gap.

Recognized for her impact, Yemurai has won the TechWomen100 award, collaborated with the Civil Service, and even interviewed the VP of Apple (Environmental Policy and Social Initiatives)—proof that unconventional paths can lead to extraordinary success.
